

Enrollment in AIR Honors/SDSU AMIND 120 Training/Coursework Spring 2023

Description: The AIR Honors Project is a training/coursework to have our Native Youth understand Restorative Justice concepts to prepare our students participant in our Native Youth Peer Court. Here, Restorative Justice models take place in many areas, some in understanding Federal Indian Law, American Indian History and Tribal Governance. We believe understanding these areas will help our Native Youth make more informed decisions within our peer jury utilizing Tribal Law and Governance concepts that involve custom and tradition.

Step 1:

First go to the AIR Programs webpage:

<https://sites.google.com/airprograms.org/airprogramshonorsproject/home>

Here you will find information on the course and purpose

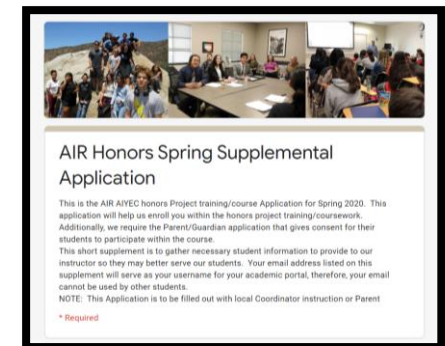

Note: As required by UC and CSU guidelines we are required to have parental approval. Parents/Guardians please fill our Parental consent.

Step 2:

Scroll down the webpage and hit the online registration.

Its not too long and easy to fill out.

Step 3:

The online registration requires a few questions and a personal statement by the student.

There are no wrong or right answers. The personal statement is about yourself, don't worry just write about yourself and it will be fine.

For any questions please contact us at: info@airprograms.org or call Dwight at: (619) 920-3152
